Title: For the Chief musician, so far the title corresponds with Psalm 40. David appears to have written the full Psalm, and also to have made this excerpt from it, and altered it to the occasion. It is a fit pendant to Psalm 69.

Division:.. This is THE POOR MAN'S MEMORIAL. David personally pleads with God that he may not be forgotten, but David's Lord may be heard here also. Even if the Lord seems to forget us, we must not forget Him. This memorial psalm connects the two Psalms of request, and with them makes a triad of song – Charles Spurgeon.

For the Chief musician,

A Psalm of David, for a memorial.

<sup>4</sup> Rejoice and be glad all who seek You: and those who love Your salvation always say, God is bigger.

<sup>5</sup> But I am poor and needy: O God, who hurries to me; You are my Help and my Deliverer; O LORD, do not delay.

Think about it: A man in a hurry uses no more words that are necessary. Anger against the enemy, must not make us forge our friends, for it is better to preserve a single citizen of Zion, than to kill a thousand of our foes. All are lovers as well as seekers, some love money more than God's salvation, some love pleasure more than God's salvation, some love bustle and business more than God's salvation, but as the stamp of the material, the temporal and the evanescent is on these earthly objects, the friends of Jesus, Yeshua – our Salvation will be the love of our life, when we've been there 10,000 years.
